

Jim Love

Jim Love was born in New York City and grew up in Walden & Montgomery New York. As a young man he owned and rode Indian motorcycles. He was a member of the Newburg Ice Skating Club and participated in many races on the frozen Hudson River. Jim married Dot Murphy and moved to Syracuse where he became a lineman for the Niagara Mohawk Electric Company. He then Moved to Hubbardsville and became a Greyhound bus driver. He moved to Garrison with his wife and two daughters, joined the United States Navy and became a Seabee. He served in the South Pacific during World War II and returned to his family and job, proud to have served his country. He was very active in the VFW Post 2362 in Cold Spring, New York. He retired from IBM in Poughkeepsie and with his wife moved to Brewerton, New York.

